Mr. Stewart is a horse buyer, one of the best known that comes into this country, and for several years he and his wife have spent several weeks here in the fall and winter. Mr. Stewart says San Francisco is rebuilding rapidly in all portions other than in the sky-scraper district down town. This portion would be further along were it not for the fact that the insurance companies have interfered. In his opinion it will take but from three to five years from now to replace San Francisco's business section on a grander scale than before. Mr. Stewart is confident that Schmitz and Reuf, with about a dozen others, should be in the pen, and every indication now is that they will be sent there.

The Thatcher Opera House announcement for next Tuesday afternoon and evening (Christmas) is the ever welcome Buster Brown. While the interesting and entertaining Buster and his fellow artists, not forgetting Tigie, are as clever as ever, their antics are entirely new. The large and unusually competent cast is headed by Master Helton who has been proclaimed the best of all the actors yet seen in the part of Buster.

Wines and Liquors for Xmas in great variety and plenty of it at Cy E. Napper's.

Not a picked-up cast of incompetent actors, nor No. 2 company will play "The Old Clothes Man" in your city December 22 at the Thatcher opera house. Mr. James Kyrie MacCurdy himself, the author (in the title role), surrounded by a company of players especially adapted in physique and mimetic ability, will portray the conception of his brain. Mr. MacCurdy will not have an inferior artist around him, and the people of Logan are sure of an evening of most intense enjoyment when "The Old Clothes Man" appears. In the arena scene of the last act, Danny Dougherty and Kid Sharkey give a very spirited exhibition that keeps the entire audience keyed up to a very high pitch. This is particularly interesting to the lady portion of the audience.

The Phenomenal Action

of the Estey and Newman Pianos—those represented here—makes them equal to all demands, even unreasonable ones. These instruments will last a life time, but it won't take a life time to pay for them on our pay-when-you're-ready plan. Of course some cash down to show you mean business.

Harris Music Co.

Mink and Ermine sets, Fox and Squirrel sets for Xmas. Opportunity extraordinary to buy elegant furs at manufacturer's cost. At Campbell's.

My holiday line of Xmas goods cheaper than ever. y E. Napper.

"The Old Clothes Man" play itself, while it borders on the sensational, never steps far beyond the line; its comedy and pathos are well balanced. Its startling situations occur naturally, while its unusual spectacular features, the "marriage in the snow," and the prize fight, in which the "Yiddish twist" come in prominence, are the most popular, and never fail to arouse an audience to the utmost enthusiasm. "The Old Clothes Man," with the author, James Kyrie MacCurdy in the title role, will be seen at the opera house December 22.

Mrs. Champ Entertains.

Last Saturday afternoon Mrs. Champ entertained a party of ladies in honor of her sister, Mrs. Butterfield of Seattle, who is visiting here. The afternoon passed most delightfully. Mrs. Butterfield, Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. S. Langton, Mrs. W. Langton, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Shepard, and Misses De Graff, Cassidy, Raymond and Katherine Smith.

Trenton News.

CORNISH, Dec. 10, 1906.—Thinking that a few lines from Trenton will be of interest to the many readers of your valuable paper, I will write a few lines for their perusal.

Trenton's inhabitants are no more left in the shade. We have telephones in our homes, and can communicate with our neighbor and friends both far and near without traveling many miles over bad roads and being exposed to the cold weather. Don't be surprised if you hear of some of us colliding with our telephone poles. We used to travel in a four-rod street, having no obstruction in them; now we have poles all along our roads. Call us up.

Trenton is rejoicing over this beautiful weather. Those who had been left in the ground will be able to dig them out. The thresher is still heard in our midst. People have commenced plowing their land for next year's beets.

Trenton's Dramatic company is making a grand showing, having played in our neighboring towns the last week under the direction of the Hon. T. H. Cutler. We will be safe in predicting that in the near future our orchestra will excel any in the country.

We have no sickness in our midst. We have two missionaries abroad, one in Arkansas, the son of Bishop B. F. Bingham, and W. H. Brough, a native of England, having emigrated to this country a few years ago. He has met with good success and now goes to his native land to tell his countrymen about our people and this country.

A Letter from a Self-Made Chauffeur to his parents in Denver

Dear Parents—I arrived in Denver last week with only the homely end of a $5 bill in my pocket. I saw it was time to make a killing or two, so I applied for a job as a chauffeur. A chauffeur is a fellow whose business is to run an automobile over people. He wears big goggles on his eyes to keep the blood from splattering into them. You'll always find him on the front seat of the automobile before it strikes the object. After that he is frequently to be found at the city jail or the city hospital. I was asked by a man who wanted a chauffeur if I had ever run a machine. "No," I replied, "I was never in one." "Fine," he said. "All you have to do is to keep the machine at full speed and hit everything you can. It's easy." So I got the job.

The first day I was very successful. I had hardly left the garage when I saw a feeble old man crossing the street. I made for him at the rate of fifty miles an hour. "Look out!" he yelled. "Don't worry," I replied. "I shan't hurt myself." Then I hit him. It was fine. He was dead by the time a man could run to him from the sidewalk. My employer was delighted. He said I was a dandy. "That's one of the quickest deaths on record," he said. "I'm mighty proud of you."

That day I managed to hit three buggies, two dogs, a peanut stand and a negro. Everything went down to destruction before me but the negro. Dam it! He flew twenty feet through the air and landed on his head. He was not hurt a bit. You can't hurt a negro if he lights on his head, you know. I felt pretty bad about the negro, but my employer was considerate. Don't worry, old man," he said. "It's your first mistake. Long experience has told me that the only way to kill a negro is to scare him to death."

Yesterday afternoon my employer's little girl was in the car and wanted to see some fun. "See if you can't break off a telegraph pole," she said. I waited till we were in the heart of the city and then hit a big, thick pole. It snapped like a pipestem, and, to make things all the better, it killed a woman in falling. The machine wasn't hurt much. The flipperole did get knocked out of gear a little, and the gigginblister was scratched up some, but, all in all, it was a glorious showing that I made. The little girl, when she saw the woman cash in, laughed in glee and called me "Dear Old Tom." Isn't that fine? Last night was rather dull. I managed to kill a hack horse and spill a wedding party in the street, but hard luck was with me—I couldn't get at the bride. Just think what a name I would have made had I killed a bride just after her wedding! But such is life—a fellow has to take the hard luck with the good.

My greatest ambition is to kill a good-sized policeman. Wouldn't that be a feather in my cap? I'm on the lookout for one all the time. I see plenty of them asleep on their beats at night, but I don't want to kill a sleeping one. I want one that will jump and yell. That will please my employer very much. Oh, I tell you, folks, there is nothing like hard work to get a fellow up in this world. By sticking closely to my duties here I have become known as an expert chauffeur, and my record of kills is first-class. Nothing succeeds like success, you know. Watch me. Good-by for this time. Your gentle and loving son, Tom.

P. S.—My employer is to take a ride tomorrow night and, just to show him a little fun and at the same time demonstrate my skill, I'm going through a fine plate-glass window somewhere.
